- IMPORTANT: Go to apcentral.collegeboard.org and sign up for a free account in order to get your scores online in July. If you think you already have an account, go to the website to try to sign in to verify. Your AP teacher and/or Mr. Medina can assist you.
- Take a deep breath and remember to focus on the application of content.

Day of Your AP Test

- Punctuality
    - If you are taking an AM exam, arrive by 6:45 to get in line for exam registration. Registration begins promptly at 7:00. Look on the back of this page to know where to report.
    - If you are taking a PM exam, arrive by 10:45 to get in line for exam registration. Registration begins promptly at 11:00. Look on the back of this page to know where to report.
    - If you have an AM exam and a PM exam on the same day, you will register for your PM test once your AM test is finished.
- DO NOT BE LATE. Set multiple alarms. Once we have begun testing, you may not enter the testing room.
- In general, you are not required to attend your classes before/after the testing period on a day you are scheduled to take an AP exam. However, if you have an EOCT scheduled that same day, it is advised you try to make it work to do both, although your AP exam takes priority. If you have any questions or concerns, visit the Mr. Medina in Office 4, Room 1006.

After Your First AP Test

- Keep your AP Student Labels and bring them to every exam you take. You will also need these to access your scores.
- Check apscore.org after exams for the exact date your scores will be available online. Also look for a reminder in July about online score availability at the email address you put on your AP answer sheet.
- Once scores are available, log onto apscore.org to get your scores. To access your scores, you will need your College Board account username and password and your AP number (from the stickers from your AP Student Labels).

Additional Information

- If you cannot take your test on the assigned day for a legitimate reason (death, emergency illness, hospitalization, etc.), you must email Marcus Medina at Marcus.Medina@gcpsk12.org immediately when you realize you will not be present for the exam. If you think you may need to participate in late testing for a legitimate reason, visit the Testing Office, Room A114. In many cases, late testers will be charged an additional $40 per exam.
